OR

3. [] of DIA (who was not present) was concerned that the standards derived for COINS might become "THE STANDARDS," and wanted it understood that this was not the case.

4. Even though the COINS plan was not official, a working group on query languages was to be established. CIA should furnish a technical representative, preferably someone working on the system design. Although the CIA query language for the system is not designed, it will be profitable to keep abreast of the early discussions between the DIA and NSA representatives.
